“After a space trip the first thing I look forward to is a glass of chilled rose”

Jim Lovell (Astronaut)

“During the intense height of the coal miners strike in June 1984, the men used to get to the pub when they could, which was not often. I would occasionally go with some of the vocal leaders and what surprised me the most is that the majority weren’t drinking pints of bitter or Guinness, but instead small glasses of sweet white wine”

Arthur Scargill (Trade unionist)

“Wine, I just don’t get it, why you would drink it when beer tastes so good”

Norm (Regular at Cheers)

“Olive oil’ – I could bathe in it,
‘good food’ – yes! I would die without it,
‘fine wine’ – prevent me from this and I would go mad.
That reminds me where are those actors!”

Sergio Leone (Italian film director)

“Sharing a bottle of wine with friends is a bit like cutting down an ash tree, with friends. You start off in great anticipation by cutting off the big branches and then there seems to be a mad chopping frenzy and all you are left with is a stump”

Didier Flambers (World famous tree surgeon)

“I invented the smooth surfaced road so that when a Gentleman had drunk a bottle of Champagne followed by a bottle of Port he would find it much easier to drive”

John Loudon McAdam (inventor of tarmac)

“Hey punk have you been drinking wine?”

California highway patrolman
Poncherello (from CHiPs)
